FROM THE PRINCIPAL'S DESK

Dr. Ashok Wadia

It's the busiest time of the year for city colleges, as they work on college admissions and upgradation of facilities on campus before they shut down for summers on May 2. However, two colleges — Jai Hind and Mithibai — have chalked out a different schedule; the next three weeks will be all about implementation of new courses as they have recently been granted an autonomous status by the University Grants Commission (UGC).

Jai Hind College, Churchgate

The college is focussed on getting students and faculty members involved in making and implementing decisions," shares principal, Dr Ashok Wadia. They have also got different bodies to identify values that can be inculcated among students, thus the curriculum and assessment policies will be designed accordingly. A look at a few amendments…

Introduction of interdisciplinary subjects

The curriculum will now include interdisciplinary subjects to help students from all streams. "A science student may want to start a business of their own or may want to know a little more on investments and develop their communication skills, and that's what we are working on. We want to provide them well-rounded education," says Dr Wadia. The curriculum will also touch upon research components and current affairs, so it will be skill-oriented and relevant for today's times. "Everything today is fast-paced, so there needs to be experiential training," he adds. Also, teachers and students will now be even more involved in the workings of the college. Not just teachers, alumni and recently graduated students will also be involved in giving their inputs for the syllabus in order to make for a more conducive environment to share knowledge.

Credits for extracurricular activities

Recommendation letters will now be replaced by a marksheet or certificate to ensure that any sort of involvement in extracurricular activities is reflected. "The cultural head will make note of the number of hours they spend, what they do and what they have achieved — whether they perform on stage or do backstage jobs," he shares.

Transparent assessment

With two semester and internal exams, students will now know how they are assessed. Says Dr Wadia, "There will be different parameters to evaluate and mark them. It will be a transparent system to know where they have faltered and how they can improve. A lengthy in-depth transparent system, it will help one know their strengths and weaknesses. We will also ensure on-time results."

MR. SURESH GOKLANEY A VISIONARY

March 1st 2018 was a momentous day for Jai Hind College when a Case study entitled "Suresh Goklaney: Eureka's Champion" was launched at IIM Bangalore. We are indeed proud of the many accomplishments of our President Mr Suresh Goklaney, who spent 30 years of passion and commitment at Eureka Forbes.

At the Case Study launch, Mr Goklaney offered the students a wonderful session on what authentic leadership is all about. In the words of Dr. S Raghunath, Professor, Corporate Strategy and Policy, Indian Institute of Management, Bangalore - "It was indeed poetry in prose on leadership, delivered with a poise that the students have not seen before. The session excited the liveliest of minds with questions that helped them understand what 'authenticleadership' is.They understood that this style of authentic leadership was very effective as it empowered colleagues around him have a shared purpose. As the leader, Mr Goklaney conveyed and created passion for the business every day while maintaining clarity about the mission of Eureka Forbes Limited. It was a rare occasion for students to gain a glimpse of fabulous achievements and excellence in leadership."

Dear Jyoti

A very nice issue - Congrats !

Just a suggestion - in interviews with Alumni you may like to say a few words on who they are/ their achievements (e.g. I don't know much about Pooja Dhingra)

Thanks Mam for your very prompt response. We'll surely incorporate your inputs in the nest issue. Pooja Dingra is the proprietor & the brain behind Le 15 confectionary, shops & café's. She is also known as Macroon queen of India & as a following of 4.5 lacs on instagram.

Wonderful to hear about Pooja - clearly out of touch.

REUNION 1985 SCIENCE BATCH

CIRCLE of FRIENDSHIP
SHARE. LEARN. SOAR

The Class of 1985 SYJC Science headed by Mehool Bhuva launched a unique initiative by organizing a get together of their batch mates in the college on 27th April 2018. They put in special efforts to invite their teachers & felicitated each one of them

The event started with registration over tea, followed by a walk down memory lane – a tour through their classrooms, laboratories, library, the auditorium & the Canteen.

The fun part of the evening was the interaction between the batch mates with each one narrating their life story. The event culminated over a sumptuous meal comprising of the favorite food items from the past put together by the college Canteen. It was an evening to remember for all as it reunited & rekindled old friendships & bonds.

The successful & enthusiastic launch of this initiative by the Class of 1985 will definitely prompt other batches to hold similar events & bring the students back to their Alma Mater. The Alumni Association of Jai Hind College will encourage & offer all support in organizing such events in the future.

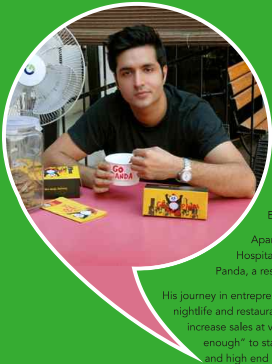
STORY



YASH CHANDIRAMANI

Yash Chandiramani is the Founder and Chief Strategist at Admatazz, a unique Tech-Media agency with focus on creative campaigns, AD-tech, ROI driven digital campaigns, and other aspects of Digital media marketing and branding. Today Admatazz is growing at a breakneck speed with clients from a variety of industries including Real estate, Education, FMCG and Lifestyle.

Apart from Admatazz Yash was the Co-Founder and Director of Svedantika Hospitality, under which he owned a popular quick service restaurant called Go-Panda, a restaurant consultancy and a high end catering business.

His journey in entrepreneurship begun when he was only 17. He was enamoured by the nightlife and restaurant industry and used to help event organizers bring in crowd and increase sales at various venues. A year into freelancing he decided he was “experienced enough” to start his own offline marketing agency. He started approaching nightclubs and high end bars to promote their events, at first he was turned down, but many tries later he managed to bag a few big contracts. Within two years, Yash's marketing firm White Knight was in exclusive contracts with almost every popular revelry spot in Mumbai and also official ticketing partners for the big events that included Sunburn, Submerge events, VH1 and MTV shows with international artists and product launches. All this while he made it into an engineering college and studied Electronics and Telecommunication.

After two years of engineering he decided that it was not for him, he didn't understand why he needed to study so much theory and subjects that he didn't like learning about. Once it hit him that he is wasting his time, he dropped out. His true calling was business and he joined Jai Hind college for its esteemed BMS programme.

Whilst in first year at he met a lot of like minded peers and was mentored by the faculty. He went on to win the Prestigious College Entrepreneur of the year award that year, a first for Jai Hind, competing with entrepreneurs from IIT, Bits Pilani, SRCC and other top college of India.

Once he was exposed to a plethora of ideas and realized the scale entrepreneurs can function at he wanted to scale up. Though the business did extremely well he didn't feel challenged enough and had two options, to pivot from offline to online marketing as the whole world was going online, or backward integrate and start his own restaurant since he was developing marketing strategies for a lot of them.

He started with investing in the restaurant business and co-founding Go Panda- India's first Asian Gourmet QSR. His company went onto undertake contracts for management and setups of various upcoming restaurants too.

While most college students were busy discussing which new place to eat at every weekend, Yash owned a full fledge restaurant business in his 3rd year of his university.

After graduating, he had a little more time on his hands especially on weekends, and with his creative campaign writing skills (Go Panda was known for the wackiest advertisements in print and social all created by him) he began helping restaurants with social media strategy, under the name of Admatazz.

Three years into the business Yash realized the scope digital media has in India and how servicing agencies were still in its nascent stage. At the right opportunity he and his partners sold the restaurant business to a Delhi based hospitality company.

Yash delved into complete Digital Media marketing and Advertising technology by expanding Admatazz into a full service agency.

Today Admatazz has a roster of almost 35 clients, unique services, mentions in digital advertising journals for its campaigns and Yash has been nominated for the prestigious 30 under 30 Digital Agency Leaders of India by Social Samosa (India's largest digital media industry journal).

In his free time, Yash continues to play basketball at his local club, mentors upcoming startups on their digital strategy and he is now a Visiting Lecturer at Jai Hind BMS teaching final year students Digital Marketing and Brand Management.

Some of his achievements:

1. Entrepreneur of the year -2012 (Goldnib Fellowship)
2. Outstanding Entrepreneurship- Jai Hind E-cell and NEN
3. Runner up in the Annual Business Plan competition by National entrepreneurship network
4. Invited to the panel of KJ Somaiyya MBA college
5. Guest Speaker at NMIMS
6. Nominee for 30 under 30 agency leaders in India by Social Samosa
7. Guest Lecturer and Mentor at Prahlad Kakkar Institute of Branding and Entrepreneurship
